

Rules of the Rendy

- 1. All out of state goats must have health certificates. State law requires that all goats brought in from other states must have a recent, veterinarian-issued health certificate and be individually identified by either a scrapie tag or tattoos and/or microchip with registration papers.
- 2. NAPgA Best Management Practices are required by our Forest Service permit. Please follow them.
- 3. Goats need to be tethered, corralled or leashed at all times.
- 4. Water. There is a pond to fill buckets for your goat water near the Rendy campground. Bring potable water or a filter for yourself.
- 5. Use only certified weed-free hay. This is a Forest Service/BLM rule for all pack stock. Please obey it.
- 6. Protect the trees. Goats love to strip trees, so please tether or pen your goats where they can't destroy them.
- 7. Ask permission before you pet. Some people do not want you touching their goats, and some goats don't like strangers. We also don't want to spread germs. Baby goats are especially susceptible to getting sick from bacteria that older goats are resistant to, do not touch them without the owner's permission. Please use hand sanitizer before and after handling kids. Let's keep our goats healthy!
- 8. Control your dogs. Do NOT let your dog wander or allow it to approach other people's goats. Keep dogs on a maximum 6-foot leash when near goats or people. Always pick up after your dog.
- 9. Use the porta-potties. NAPgA has rented porta-potties for our use. Do NOT use the vault toilet. Leave it for the folks who aren't part of our Rendy.
- 10. Supervise your children. We love to see kids run and play but please do not allow them to disrupt talks or disturb other campers.
- 11. This is bear and cougar country. Store your trash and food every evening so it does not attract them. Keep your eyes and ears open, carry bear spray and watch your children, especially dusk to dawn. If your goats are tethered, we encourage you to use bells so you can hear them startle.
- 12. "Leave No Trace." Please pick up everything around your camp before leaving, including old hay and bedding. Once you've moved your tent or trailer check your camp again. Pack it up, pack it out.

Quiet time is 10:00 pm to 7:00 am.
